MUSIC PLAYING SKILL

Music playing skill is the technicalities required to make music using any particular musical instrument or a range of musical instruments. Music playing skill makes music. Music is simply organized and melodious sound. It calms stress, motivates and inspire.

A person who is skilful in music is called a musician. A musician may be specialized in playing a particular instrument or a particular category of instrument. For a person to develop the skill of music playing the person ought to have at least one musical instrument. To start, the recorder is cheap and easy to learn.

The place where one can develop his/her music playing skill is a music studio. A music studio ought to have a speaker, microphone, and recorder (e.g. computer) basically. Other instruments that could be used in music studio are mixers, amplifiers, and good range of musical instruments like trumpet, talking drum, etc.

The Importance of Music Playing Skill

The importance of music playing skill is as follows:

- The player could teach music to learners
- The player could lead a music group and go for functions
- The player could become a composer or songwriter
- The player could make a living with his music playing skill