ARCHAEOLOGY

Archaeology is the study of the past or history through material remains. Archaeological record consists of artifacts, architecture, biofacts or ecofacts, and cultural landscapes.

It has various goals, which range from understanding culture history to reconstructing past lifeways to documenting and explaining changes in human societies through time.

Archaeology can be considered both as a social science and a branch of the humanities. The US classifies it under anthropology, but Europe studies it as a subject or group it under related subjects like history.