JAVA COMMENTS

When you create a New Project in NetBeans, you'll notice that some text is greyed out, with lots of slashes and asterisks. The greyed out areas are comments. When the programme runs, comments are ignored. Comments are used to explain codes.

You can have a single line comment by typing two slashes, followed by your comment:

//This is a simple line comment

If you want to have more than one line, you can do this:

/* This is a comment spreading over two lines */

There is also something called a `Javadoc` comment. It looks like this:

```
* This is a Javadoc comment
*/
